Scholarship & Award Opportunity

The Scholarship and Awards Committee encourages you to apply for the Salem Civil Liberties Awards by submitting a seminar paper, a paper submitted in other competitions or law review notes. Please review the scholarship criteria below.

Salem Civil Liberties Awards

Awarded annually to a second- or third-year student who has written the best paper relating to the expansion of civil rights. Preference for articles on constitutional civil rights including topics on the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments, but any topic advancing civil rights issues will be acceptable.

Award 1: Awarded to a member of the Class of 2018 whose law review submission was accepted for publication in either the Oklahoma Law Review or the American Indian Law Review. $1,000 Award

Award 2: Awarded to a member of the Class of 2018 or 2019 for an unpublished paper submitted for consideration, and which the faculty may choose to use as an incentive in a civil rights class or seminar. This does not preclude the second paper from being selected for publication at a later date, only that the second award be an incentive to students who may not be on law review but who are interested in civil rights topics. $1,000 Award

Note: Please include a cover sheet with the name and number of the award you are applying for, the professor for whom the paper was written, and whether the article has been approved for publication on OLR or AILR. Submissions must be received electronically (rlucas@ou.edu) before 5:00 p.m. on Friday, April 19, 2019.
